PROHIBITION AND THE LEGISLATURE

The Virginia General Assembly is now engaged, as it has been for many weeks, wasting time and the people's money in an effort to make a law which, governing the consumption of whiskey in this State. The best medical authorities contend that it is at least needed for medicine. No one can be had in Appomattox with an order, except because our former representative made Appomattox an exception in the law allowing liquor to be sold in it.

The question of abolishing the office of Commissioner of Prohibition is now a live one before our law makers. No objection to Rev. Peters has been raised, but there is much sentiment against his office, which is characterized as the Governor's and a useless expenditure of the State's money.

We believe with the Governor, that with the Federal Government's force of revenue officers, and the state, county and district officers and with the Grand Juries of every county the law is well and efficiently guarded, and its enforcement guaranteed by responsible officers of the people's own selection. The inspectors employed by Mr. Peters have done much to bring criminals on his office. Knifing a man—manslaughter only with a slight offence—under the guise of law enforcement will not be tolerated.

Senator Cock, of Emporia, has offered a bill placing the dispensary of whiskey for sickness in the hands of the State Health Department, where it can always be had on doctors' prescription. A few days ago while the committee was considering this bill, Mr. J. L. Lee, well known criminal attorney, of Lynchburg, delivered an impassioned ten minute talk in which he urged the committee with all the eloquence to support the bill. Doctors were traveling all over the state, he said, pleading with this czar of the prohibition department for whiskey, but to no avail. Commissioner Peters had stated a few moments before that he had had no whiskey since December 15.

Mr. Lee congratulated himself on having his own cellar well stocked and boasted of how he "treated every person" he had in his dungeon earth in giving whiskey to sufferers, of which are during the first severe epidemic. He declared he was ready to offer bail to the effect.

It is confidently expected that the Legislature will compromise the matter and continue the office of Prohibition Commissioner until another session of the Legislature, when the question will again be brought forward. It is a safe bet that should the present session fail to abolish the office, the next will be active one in the same campaign for the legislature.

Our Representatives

Senator Ferguson is recorded as voting against Woman Suffrage. He is been hide-bound against suppose Women suffrage, and probably never will have any good reason to support. There is no doubt about women getting the ballot in a short while, but the ratification of the amendment without referendum is objectionable to some.

Delegate Moseley in the matter of a bill in the House to improve the Board of Supervisors of Appomattox believe that a further increase in the head-tax which must be paid before you can vote is objectionable. Better write your repre-

Score One for Professor.

He was the keenest student in the class, and when an unpopular professor said: "Gentlemen, your next subject for composition will be 'Manners,'" he at once rose and asked: "Shall we write on bad manners, sir?" The professor looked over his spectacles at the self-conquering youth and quietly answered: "Certainly; you will write about whatever you are best acquainted with."

Essay on Geese.

The following composition on geese was written, according to Capper's Weekly, by a schoolboy in St. Louis: "Geese is a heavyest bird with a head on one side and a tail on the other. His feets is set so far back on his body that they hardly can walk. Geese has a odor in his tail. Genders hardly to tell. They just eat and poop and is stupid. If I has to be a goose I would rather be dumber. Geese do not give milk, but give eggs. Instead we give me liberty or give me death."

Thoughts of Virginia

Adrican, Wash.,
Jan. 30, 1920

Old Times Virginian:

Our western friends wanted me to say hello to their many friends and neighbors around Appomattox. Again glad to read the good newsy items from that vicinity but always disappointed when I look through the paper and find the good old place not represented that is when sometimes happens. I learn through our good old paper many changes have taken place and again we notice the ever changing hand of time rolls on into eternity. Congratulations and all good wishes to the newly married couples. Everybody is having comfortable homes and we see that there is quite an exodus over the State and the precaution is taken that you have the old time fire at each season.

Well, my dear friends we envy you. You can wheat for corn, buying sugar. I see you are having to pay 25¢ a pound for a part of a sack and meal is going up so I guess we can stick our noses in 2 pounds for $10.50 I am glad to know that selling good. It seems it will be a good price paid.

I have had a terrible time the most of Nov. and Dec. was more cold it is below zero here most of the time. Parts of this State was colder, yet we are much snow compared to Parts of Southern Virginia. Hoping and looking for a letter soon from some of you. We are having unusual weather and looks as though everyone would come for rain is a rare thing here.

Apples have been havin' a kind of sport attending the "rabbit drives" around.

The county is making roads to get rid of the Jacks that is there and gotten to be a nuisance. They were very destructive to crops and orchards. Some have rendered against them and if they find a nest in the crop in and burn the whole.

I got shot in the last of the season, guess I won't go out.

Strange they should write me for a big "Jack" with ears, for my ears well tucked up in my hat but I took effect right over the ears but saw the doctor trimmed my and the effect was not serious. There are lots of rabbits when 75 to 100 or more men line up and march on the Jack rabbit world, but fun if had no accidents, some fellows will get reckless and the fun.

Will try and write again as the news is scarce just now.

Dear Editor enclosed find one dollar for which please send my subscription one year.

Best wishes to all.

The business department managed the stores, cottages, ladies picture theaters, pool parlors, tailor shops, dry cleaning establishments, barber shops, newsstands, a market, a vegetable farm and a dairy farm where 1,000 hogs were raised on the wastes from eating pieces. It maintained a slaughter house where these hogs were put through the regular packing house course. It operated a laundry which cleaned 7,000 pieces a day. While there was a real estate department that rented and managed the family quarters and a housing department which assigned it quarters everybody excepting the families.

Under separate jurisdiction from its community stores were the police.

The health department, in charge of a physician from New York city, served with a staff—five in each of the temporary buildings, and was well fitted, clean and splendidly equipped. Conditions were favorable to disease. The winter was the severest on record in northern Alabama. The men were compelled to wear either rubber or mud sleeve boots knee high. As a result a pneumonia epidemic developed among the Negroes that nearly killed. Later in the year a typhoid epidemic was threatened. However, the site of Cherokee was in the heart of the malaria district. But the pneumonia epidemic was checked, the typhoid threat nipped in the bud, and malaria stamped out.

A Health Board established

The Hillside hospital hospital presently grew to a complete modern institution with a nurses' home and a separate dispensary for dental, eye, ear, throat, genito-urinary clinics and a surgical dispensary for first-aid work.

During the eight months when the death rate was not affected by the influenza and pneumonia epidemics the general health rate was 12.4 per thousand per year, which is 1-3rd less than most either in the same latitude and climate, and the pneumonia death rate during the epidemic was lower than in most large settlements.

Much of the success of the health administration is due to the establishment of the Phoenix Sanitary service of the United States Public Health Service.

The education and welfare department also had a vital work to perform. There was a school population of over 2,000 children. Besides the regular school at the parsonage on Monday night, 500 G. R. Testimonials will be served come and bring your pocket.

Little hope for bulk prices in the tobacco markets are held out to the growers of the weed. The market here is dragging all it can to hold up the prices Foreign money matters will be settled a little later and then the buyers who invest in our tobaccos will realize handsome profits.

THIS CITY BUILT WHILE YOU WAIT

Fourth Largest Town in Alabama Full Grown in One Year.

HAD A MODEL GOVERNMENT

Permanent Settlement Around U. S. Nitrate Plant Presented Unusual Problems.

By GARRET SMITH.

The fourth largest city in Alabama, peopled with 25,000 souls of diverse races and religious, sprouted from far seasoned communities in every part of the United States and Canada sprang into being almost overnight around the great new government ammonium nitrate plant down on the Tennessee river. Here in the Muscle Shoals on the Tennessee River during the last year of the World War. Here was a problem in city building, municipal government and community welfare that has seldom been equalled and the success of its solution has never been excelled.

The job was in the hands of the Air Nitrates Corporation which had been organized under the direction of the ordnance department to build plant and city at Muscle Shoals. Early in January, 1918, the new town had a few temporary buildings and a population of 500. This had jumped by the middle of August to more than 23,000. A population multiplied by 70 in 7 months.

In the management of the new towns and army contonments that sprung up during the war the oldest cities with that attended the growth of our boom cities have been avoided by the application of modern welfare systems. But nowhere were conditions more difficult than at Muscle Shoals. There was a malarial region threatened at the same time with other deadly disease epidemics. Transportation was lacking. No nearby labor was available and the general labor shortage was at its most acute stage. Costs of labor and supplies were leaping over night. Furthermore, Muscle Shoals differed from all the other new war towns inasmuch as it was to be permanent.

New Government Devised.

The managers, besides city government, had to handle the entire real business of the town. A camp supervisor's department was put in charge of the maintenance of all buildings, fire protection and sanitation. The same supervisor looked after everything from the mending of a lock to the remodeling of groups of buildings or laying secret or sewer mains. For the borough contingent a commissary department was necessary.

The business department managed the stores, cottages, ladies picture theaters, pool parlors, tailor shops, dry cleaning establishments, barber shops, newsstands, a market, a vegetable farm and a dairy farm where 1,000 hogs were raised on the wastes from eating pieces. It maintained a slaughter house where these hogs were put through the regular packing house course. It operated a laundry which cleaned 7,000 pieces a day. Origin of "White Elephant."

The king of Siam in years gone by would send a white elephant to a courtier whom he disliked and whose fortune he wished to destroy. The man could not sell the elephant and the expense of keeping it eventually "broke him up." From that custom was handed down our present day saying, "He's got a white elephant on his hands."
